Mad Moon

by Jonathan Dove, lyrics by Alasdair Middleton

That night the Moon went mad
And cut off all her hair;
Pressed her face to the window panes
To stare at the people there.

And when they saw her face
And heard her mad, white tune;
They leaped and danced all over the place
To the song of the lunatic moon.